Dear Parents,

Covid 19 Update

I hope that everyone is well and coping with the rigors of juggling home schooling and work.

I am sure that you are aware the Boris Johnson will be making an announcement on Sunday about a potential relaxation of the lockdown in some areas along with a roadmap to a more significant reduction of measures going forward. We have no prior warning of what might be suggested but we will be watching with interest and will react to whatever is announced.

As you know we have been planning for various return to school scenarios and so are hopeful that we have a plan to match whatever is announced on Sunday. As always whatever we do will be led primarily by keeping pupils, parents and staff safe.

I will be in contact when I know more.

On a separate note, it is a bank holiday tomorrow to celebrate VE Day so teachers will not be setting work for pupils tomorrow; we hope that you enjoy the celebrations! Our key workers' children are making cards for the veterans today to aid the celebrations. School will be open tomorrow for our established key workers group.

Yours sincerely

Mr S Bill
